What impact/sustainability have you seen?	What evidence do you have?
Increased daily activity levels: Most pupils are now consistently accessing at least 30 minutes of physical activity daily, supported by improved external spaces. This is evidenced by pupil and staff surveys and reduced lunchtime incidents. Positive attitudes towards sport & healthy lifestyles: Pupil voice feedback indicates children feel more confident trying new activities and value keeping active. The water coolers have reinforced hydration habits, linking directly to wellbeing. Staff confidence and skills developed: Lunchtime supervisors now independently lead a variety of games and activities, embedding an active culture. Teaching staff, supported by the PE lead and specialist coaches, report greater confidence delivering PE and enrichment sessions. Targeted support for wellbeing: Specialist sessions have strengthened pupils' understanding of health, mental wellbeing and contextual issues. This holistic approach means children associate physical activity with overall happiness and resilience. Sustained structures: Investments in external spaces and equipment will continue to benefit future cohorts. CPD for staff and lunchtime supervisors ensures long-term impact beyond the life of individual funding cycles.	• Participation data, improved fitness assessments, and positive pupil voice feedback will evidence success. • Lunchtime supervisors confidently leading structured games. • Increased uptake of clubs by previously less active children. • Long-term improvements to external spaces provide sustained benefits for future cohorts.
